STATE AGRICULTURAL COLLEGE TO HAVE BIG EXHIBIT

The College of Agriculture, University of Kentucky, is preparing an elaborate educational exhibit to be shown at the State Fair this year. Under plans now being worked out booths will be arranged so that the work and method of work of the departments will be shown, such as agronomy, animal husbandry, farm management, horticulture, food and drugs, markets, entomology and botany. Extension workers in boys' and girls' agricultural clubs and poultry clubs are planning unusually interesting shows.

Seven thousand boys and girls of the State are interested in the club exhibits and they will be represented by one delegate from each county in which there is a club. The delegate, heretofore, has been the first prize winner of the club and the same method, will, doubtless, be used this year. One thousand dollars will be given the boys and girls for premiums this year.

Kentucky, the first State in the Union to attempt the task of introducing pure bred poultry stock into every county of the State, will have one of the most interesting features of the fair in the poultry exhibit, uniting as it will so many attractive and educational phases.

KENTUCKY TO RAISE LARGE CROP OF BUCKWHEAT.

Steps to make Kentucky a bigger buckwheat State will be taken this month by John R. Humphrey, head of the department of markets, University of Kentucky. He will go to Pulaski county the latter part of July to formulate three farmers' co-operative companies for the purpose of establishing elevators, the first in the State.

Several sections of Kentucky, Mr. Humphrey said, are admirably adapted to raising of buckwheat, and this land can produce little else besides brush and grass. Buckwheat is sown late in July or early in August and thrives on sandy soil.

Extension of the buckwheat industry, Mr. Humphrey said, also carries with it the extension of another important industry, that of bee keeping. Pulaski, Barren and Metcalfe counties are the best suited for the raising of this crop.

One hundred and fifty thousand bushels of buckwheat were produced in Kentucky last year, and it is estimated the crop this season will be of about equal amount. But notwithstanding this yield Kentucky has no elevators and all the crop has to be sent to mills in Pennsylvania and Wisconsin, entailing additional expense. It is estimated within a few years the yield will be close to 500,000 bushels annually in the State.

FORMER PUBLISHER ENGAGES IN THE OIL BUSINESS.

Hughes, former publisher of the Bluegrass Blade in Lexington and later the proprietor of a large job printing plant there, but who for some time has been a resident of Louisville, has opened the Louisville Oil Exchange at the Henry Watterston Hotel and also launched an oil publication in the Falls City. Mr. Hughes is of the opinion that the oil industry of Kentucky is yet in its infancy, and that as the Eastern and Southern Kentucky fields are developed the people of the State will awaken to the realization of the magnitude of the industry.

HERE'S MAN HAD NOT HEARD OF DRAFT LAW.

Failure to subscribe for a newspaper is said to be responsible for the plight in which John Schultz, a resident of Riverside, California, finds himself.

Shortly before the selective service act, effective June 5, 1917, Schultz obtained a job in the mountains felling trees. He knew the United States was at war, but he claims he did not know about the order to register.

When he came back to Riverside to see his wife and child he was arrested as a "slacker." "This teaches me a lesson," said Schultz to his attorney, Lou Guernsey: "I'll never try to do without a paper again."
